

EMSCAT

Founded in 1970, Études mongoles et sibériennes, centrasiatiques et tibétaines (EMSCAT) is one of the oldest currently published journal dealing with the Mongol world and surround areas in eastern Asia. In 1976, EMSCAT expanded coverage to include Siberia, and in 2004, central Asia and Tibet. It is EMSCAT's intention to provide a forum for scholarship on cultural issues by both established scholars and young researchers new to the field. The editorial line encompasses regular issues, monographs, and comparative thematic issues often produced by guest editors. The journal is published annually..

From now on, EMSCAT will appear solely in an online format. EMSCAT is hosted by Revues.org, the federation of on-line journals concerning the social and human sciences. Several back issues of EMSCAT are already available freely online, while the others slated for release in the coming year. There is a three-year moving wall between the publication date of the most recent issue (n° 38-39, 2008) and when it will appear online. For access to the journal please visit <http://emscat.revues.org>

We hope you will enjoy reading the volumes 32 ; 35 and 36-37

Ralf Kramer has offered the following volume for book-reviewing in the pages of the RET. If you wish to write this book-review, please contact the director of the RET (jlac@tele2.fr) or Mr Kramer (ralf.kramer@hotmail.com).

Franz-Karl Ehrhard (2008). A Rosary of Rubies: The Chronicle of the Gur-rigs mDo-chen Tradition from South-Western Tibet. (Collectanea Himalayica ; 2), München: INDUS VERLAG. 167 Pages, cloth-binding, ISBN 978-3-940659-01-9 — EUR 39,95 plus postage.

The mDo-chen bKa'-brgyud-pa school represents a little known Buddhist tradition from Mang-yul Gung-thang in south-western Tibet. It goes back to a Buddhist yogin known as Ma-bdun-pa or Ma-bdun ras-chen (12th/13th c.) and was later mainly spread by members of the Gur family. Although belonging to the "Upper 'Brug" (stod 'brug) branch of the 'Brug-pa bKa'-brgyud-pa school, the mDo-chen tradition has always been deeply infused with the "spoken teachings" (bka' ma) and "treasure teachings" (gter ma) of the rNying-ma-pa school, and the cult of the "Seven Ma-mo Sisters" (ma mo mched bdun) was particularly practised and transmitted by its members.

This book presents a critical edition, an annotated translation and a photographic reproduction of a manuscript copy of a rare chronicle of the Gur-rigs mDo-chen tradition written by Brag-dkar rta-so sPrul-sku Chos-kyi dbang-phyug (1775–1837). The text provides us with an overview of the tradition's development mainly through biographical accounts but also through prophecies, prayers and praises for individual masters. The study concludes with two appendices based on the mDo chen bka' brgyud gser 'phreng, a lineage history composed in the 15th century, and the "records of teachings received" (thob yig) of three important members of the Gur family, thus allowing us to gain an insight into the transmissions of the mDo-chen bKa'-brgyud-pa school and the interactions of its representatives with other important Buddhist teachers up to the 18th century. The present work is a further outcome of the author's investigations into the cultural and religious traditions of south-western Tibet and the neighbouring Himalayan valleys.
